

Mielec, Poland: The Shtetl That Became a Nazi Concentration Camp

On March 9, 1942, the Jewish community of Mielec, Poland, ceased to exist. The Nazis dismantled the entire town in a single day, executing the elderly, deporting the able-bodied for slave labor, and transporting the rest to the Lublin district, where they were later murdered in Sobibor and Belzec. The Germans had taken over a Polish aircraft factory on the outskirts of Mielec, where they manufactured Heinkel 111 bomber planes for the Nazi war machine. Following the March 9, 1942, deportation, the factory complex became part of the Mielec Nazi slave labor camp, later a concentration camp. Using rare photographs and records, Nazi documents, witness statements, survivor interviews, and war criminal trial transcripts, Rochelle G. Saidel tells the story of the flourishing Mielec Jewish community, the unusual way it was wiped out by the Nazis, the few survivors who managed to run and hide, and the almost unknown brutal Mielec slave labor camp that operated from March 1942 until July 1944. This illuminating study gives Mielec its due place in Holocaust history.

[\[PDF\] Ravenna : a study](#)

[\[PDF\] Liberty and Security in the Age of Terrorism](#)

[\[PDF\] What is Marxism?: An introduction to the Study of Scientific Socialism](#)

[\[PDF\] Geschichte Des Seidengewerbes in Koln Vom 13. Bis Zum 18. Jahrhundert \(German Edition\)](#)

[\[PDF\] Christ and communism.](#)

[\[PDF\] globalization of English speech: Challenges and Innovation: The First National English Speech Academic Teaching and Research Symposium](#)

[\[PDF\] The Works of Oliver Wendell Holmes: The Professor at the Breakfast-Table](#)

Mielec, Poland: The Shtetl That Became a Nazi Concentration Camp It was totally destroyed by the Nazis in one day, March 9, 1942. It went quickly from being a shtetl to a Nazi concentration camp. The Nazis appropriated it Mielec, Poland: The Shtetl That Became a Nazi Concentration Camp Mielec, Poland: The Shtetl That Became a Nazi Concentration Camp by Rochelle G. Saidel on ResearchGate, the professional network for scientists. Mielec, Poland: From Jewish Community to Nazi Concentration The Shtetl that Became a Nazi Concentration Camp Rochelle G. Saidel After World War II, the Polish aircraft industry returned to Mielec, with the Soviet Union Mielec, Poland: The Shtetl That Became a Nazi Concentration Camp The Shtetl That Became a Nazi Concentration Camp This unprecedented book about Mielec, Poland is available for pre-orders from Gefen Publishing, as well Mielec, Poland: The Shtetl That Became a Nazi Concentration Camp On March 9, 1942, the Jewish community of Mielec, Poland,

