

The Triptych Papers: Lectures on Post-Colonialism, Creolisation & the Epistemologies of Displacement

This book explores the arrival, situation and politics of post-Colonialism. It argues that the post-Colonial subject can no more blame the colonialist for his condition, since he has had time an opportunity to alter it. Morris examines the the psychological modes which hold the founding of an ethic by which to pursue a life distinct in values from the dominant colonial mores in abeyance.
